Soon after the Orsay meeting, Cesare Cornoldi suggested strengthening the links among European researchers by organizing a second meeting. This idea was very well received by the participants of the previous one. The Second EWIC was held at the University of Padua, in the prestigious old university building at Piazza Capitaniato. Keynote speakers were Alan Baddeley (MRC APU) and Peter Lang (University of Florida).

The proceedings of the workshop were available at the start of the meeting, and a set of state-of-the-art presentations formed the basis of a book edited by Cesare Cornoldi and Mark McDaniel.
